GAME PREVIEW

Charleston Battery will play its fifth road game in seven games across all competitions on Wednesday, with one final road trip to follow before it caps off a difficult stretch away from home. Although the club is 1W-3L-0T away from home this year across all competitions, its lone victory was a historic 2-0 shutout win at Louisville City FC, in which the Battery became the first team to take all three points at Louisville in the regular season since Rhode Island FC did so in June 2024 – nearly two full years ago. After snapping back-to-back Players' Shield winners' 26-game home unbeaten streak in the regular season with the statement result, Charleston fell 3-0 at expansion club Brooklyn FC in its next game, before rebounding vs. Tampa Bay Rowdies and collecting a 1-1 tie. Charleston has shown it can throw punches with some of the best teams in the league, but will look to find that form consistently as it looks for its first-ever win in the Ocean State.

In Rhode Island FC's first league win of the season last time out, a 3-1 victory at Lexington SC, three different goalscorers combined for the club's best attacking showing of 2026 USL Championship season, displaying a full-throttle attack that is clicking at the right time. In the first half, both goals came from out wide. Aldair Sanchez started the party in the 22nd minute, making a blistering solo run down the left wing after forcing a turnover in the midfield and picking out the top-left corner with a powerful effort. Sanchez's goal finished as one of four finalists for the USL Championship Goal of the Week. Six minutes later, Williams played a brilliant ball through to a wide-open Jojea Kwizera on the opposite side, who doubled the lead with his second goal of the year, a composed left-footed finish that took a deflection off of the Lexington goalkeeper. The goal was the second of the year for both Sanchez and Kwizera across all competitions – both of Sanchez's career goals for RIFC have come in the last four games, while Kwizera has already matched his goal total from 2025.

WHAT TO WATCH FOR

JUMPIN' JJ

Despite a penalty-shootout loss, the story of RIFC's second-straight U.S. Open Cup clash vs. the New England Revolution came deep into second-half stoppage time. The Revolution were holding a 1-0 lead in the 10th and final minute of added time, and looked primed to see out the narrow win until JJ Williams declared otherwise. Rising up to meet the deflected cross of Hamady Diop in the six-yard box, the physical striker found the back of the net to level the game, scoring the latest regulation goal in club history with one of the last touches to send the game into overtime in thrilling fashion. The goal from Williams was his team-leading fourth goal contribution of the season and the 21st of his RIFC career, which stands as the club's all-time lead. Both of his goals this season have come from headers. The last time Charleston came to Centreville Bank Stadium, Williams was also the difference-maker, nodding home a close-range header in the second-half to secure a huge 1-0 win over the second-place Battery on Aug. 30, 2025.

FOR THE RECORDBOOKS

Rhode Island FC has enjoyed success over Charleston, losing just once in six all-time meetings with a 3W-1L-2T all-time record vs. the Battery. RIFC currently holds a two-win streak in the ongoing series – Charleston's last win vs. Rhode Island came in the form of a 2-0 shutout on March 15, 2025, in RIFC's 2025 season opener. The Ocean State club most recently eliminated the No. 2-seeded Battery in the 2025 Eastern Conference Quarterfinals on Nov. 2, 2025, defeating the South Carolina club in the playoffs for the second-straight year and fielding RIFC's run to back-to-back Eastern Conference Finals. The first trophy in RIFC's history was also won in Charleston when RIFC toppled the Battery 2-1 in the 2024 Eastern Conference Final. RIFC is 2W-0L-0T vs. Charleston with silverware on the line, and will look to continue that trend when it takes the field for the inaugural Breeze Cup on Wednesday.

KOKE COMES UP BIG

RIFC's win at Lexington would not have been possible without a strong second-half effort from goalkeeper Koke Vegas, who protected RIFC's lead with four important saves to weather an increased attacking onslaught from the hosts. The best of the bunch came in the 83rd minute, when Vegas dove at full stretch to deny Phillip Goodrum's long-range shot that was headed for the top-right corner, swatting the shot away with a strong right paw. In the 87th minute, Vegas turned away Goodrum again, protecting RIFC's two-goal lead with a heroic one-on-one save to secure all three points.

ABOUT THE BREEZE CUP

Wednesday night marks the first leg of the inaugural Breeze Cup—a two-game aggregate competition against Charleston Battery, where both teams compete for silverware, and fans have the chance to win free flights on Breeze Airways. The team that scores the most goals across two games will lift the Breeze Cup. The second game will take place during the regular-season reverse fixture between the two sides on Sept. 26 at Patriots Point Soccer

RHODE ISLAND FC

ABOUT RHODE ISLAND FC

Our purpose is to build A Club for All Rhode Island. Everything we do on and off the pitch is focused on this North Star. It is part of our culture, our language and our values. It is the inspiration for us to play a meaningful and impactful role in the community. It is the motivation for us to compete, win and raise trophies. It is the reason we built the award-winning Centreville Bank Stadium on the riverfront in downtown Pawtucket – a place to gather as a community and create lifelong memories.

We want to be one of the most respected soccer clubs in North America and the flagship venue for sports and entertainment in Rhode Island. We know that when we wear the crest across our hearts, we represent more than the club. We play for the people and place we call home. It is why, we will always be:

GROUNDING

We are who we are. No apologies.

INDEPENDENT

Founded by an iconoclast, we were the first colony to break from tyranny. A defiant giant stands atop our state house as a reminder of hope and independence. We have never cared what others thought, and we are not about to start.

FOR ALL

The country's first synagogue. The first African American pro soccer players in the Watson Brothers. Immigrants from every corner of the globe stand tall within our borders. All are welcome in our state and in our club.

PROUD

We are a small state surrounded by titans. So we learned long ago that if you can't stand taller, stand together.

SALTY

What did you expect of the Ocean State? We've got an attitude and we are happy to share it with you – be it a raised glass or raised voice.

MEET CHIP

Not your ordinary harbor seal.

Name: Chip (because if you're THIS iconic, you deserve to be in the celebrity single name club!)

Favorite Food: Fish & Chips; Quahogs (secret cravings for New York System wieners, ideally washed down with some coffee milk.)

Languages spoken: Bark, Snort and Grunt. Arf! Arf!

Personality: Energetic. Optimistic. Charismatic. And just a tad salty.

Favorite sport: Beach soccer.

Favorite "haul out": That's a toughie. The stadium on gameday, of course. But shaking flippers with fans in the community is pretty awesome, too. And you just can't beat the rocks and beaches in Rhode Island.

Favorite team: RIFCFAA (Rhode Island FC Forever And Always). Duh!

Unique Features: 13 whiskers (RI is the 13th state after all); anchor nose; RIFC seal spots (when you're a true fan, you go all out).

Lucky number: 401

CENTREVILLE BANK STADIUM

CENTREVILLE BANK STADIUM

On the banks of the Seekonk River, the Tidewater Landing development is a gamechanger for the city of Pawtucket and the state of Rhode Island. The multi-purpose, award-winning Centreville Bank Stadium is the anchor of the development, which will include housing, restaurants, retail stores and recreational amenities. Rhode Islanders and visitors can attend a soccer match or concert, enjoy the Riverwalk, grab a bite, or call Centreville Bank Stadium home. The world-class destination on Pawtucket's riverfront will support thousands of jobs and create millions of dollars of tax revenue.

The 10,500-seat stadium is the home pitch to Rhode Island FC. Centreville Bank Stadium is the flagship venue for sports and entertainment in Rhode Island, hosting other sporting and community events and concerts.

Centreville Bank Stadium and the Tidewater Landing development is the result of over three years of close collaboration between the state of Rhode Island, the Executive Office of Commerce, the Rhode Island House and Senate, the city of Pawtucket, the Pawtucket City Council and developer Fortuitous Partners.

The site has been vacant for nearly 50 years. After decades of industrial use dating back to 1881, the full project will be built in multiple phases on two sites totaling 25 acres on both sides of the Seekonk River.

The private investment in Tidewater Landing represents the largest investment of private capital in any development in Rhode Island in over a century.
